

FIVE LITTLE BANDITS

by Buffy Silverman

Five little bandits
peering out a hole.
The first one said,
“Let’s take a moonlit stroll.”
The second one sniffed.
“I smell crayfish over there.”
The third one stopped.
“Beware! A bear!”
The fourth one pounced
and caught a fish to eat.
The fifth one slapped,
then scooped another treat.
Ooooooh went the wind
Through the cool, dark night
And the five little bandits sloshed out of sight.
